Introduction

Prologue

The Bible contains several genealogies with surprising details, but how do those genealogies fit together and also perfectly prove what the Bible teaches us about a relatively young creation? How do the Proto-Masoretic text and other texts compare to the divinely inspired Greek Old Testament?

1	Luk 3:38 ... Adam, the son of THEOS.				- no beginning , eternal -																					If the genealogies would not begin with the FATHER of Adam (= THEOS, see Luke 3:38 which is regularly being neglected), but only with Adam, then Abram would not have come in the 22nd generation (letters of Hebrew alphabet). Jacob was in the 24th generation and Admin has to be inserted in order to achieve 77 generations until CHRISTOS. If THEOS is not included as the first of all creation (Col E15-18), then the Moodline of CHRISTOS would only be human, but not divine in its origin.
2	Luk 3:38 ... Adam, the son of THEOS.	IChr 1:1 Adam, Seth, Enosh;	Gen 2:7 Birthd Adam.		0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	5554	4624	930		-	The timeline from Adam to the construction start of Solomon's temple is specified in the Bible: The timeline from the temple to the birth of IESOUS CHRISTOS is specified in quantity of continuous generations, but the respective fatherhood dates are not given: • from Adam to Abraham = 3388 years • from Abraham to Isaac = 160 years • from Isaac to Exodus = 560 years • from Exodus to Temple = 480 years • from Temple to IESOUSCHRISTOS = 966 years total = 5552 years The total of 5552 years closely match the 5500 years from Adam to IESOUS CHRISTOS, mentioned in several non-canonical sources like the names "Age 5500 years" in the 8th day", "within 6000 years"; Mesosianic Age at all 7 generations * Adam to Enoch But L16 "And Enach, the seventh from Adam ..." [this does harmonize with being the 8th from THEOS] "167" is a scribal error, also found in the Samaritan. "187" is the correct begotting age. "188" is a scribal error. "182" is shown by the autograph reading The flood waters had disappeared in the very last days of the 600th life year of Noah. Therefore the second year after the flood equals 603 years (2296 BC, Gen 8:13 Gen 9:28-29; minus 100 years (Gen 11:10) making Noah begot Sem at the age of 502.
